Fayette County Implements “State of the Art” 911 System

Fayette County has completed its implementation of a new “State of the Art” 911 System, providing greater service to all citizens.

Fayette County’s staff has worked in conjunction with Airbus DS, located in Temecula, California, since the beginning of 2015. This initiative now enables Communications Officers to utilize state of the art equipment that enhances communication. The implementation of this equipment will include future capability to receive text messages from the public and first responders and allow for enhanced data management and analytics.

“The Fayette County 911 Center is the hub for fast, effective communication between citizens and first responders throughout the county,” said Chairman Charles Oddo. “The installation of this new system will advance our emergency center’s communication to even higher possibilities.”

The implementation and utilization of this state of the art technology is truly a milestone in the Fayette County’s 911 Operations.

911 Director Bernard J. Brown stated, “As the 911 Director, I am confident knowing Fayette County is moving with great strides to provide the best service to the citizens we serve.”
