MASSEE LANE GARDENS

The Masee Lane Gardens had its beginnings as the private garden of David C. Strother in the 1930s. Mr. Strother donated this land to the American Camellia Society for its headquarters in 1966. Strother was quite a collector – the millstones he brought into the gardens have become a Masee Lane signature. The old, wire road-mile markers, some with the mile number still visible, add another dimension to the garden. Come and see this great garden with us.
